LOBBYING DEFINED

“Lobby” or “Lobbying” means:

- (A) To communicate orally or in writing with any legislator or administrative official for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action;
- (B) Solicitation of others to influence legislative or administrative action;
- (C) An attempt to obtain the goodwill of a legislator or administrative official intended ultimately to influence legislative or administrative action; or
- (D) Activities sponsored by an employer or lobbyist on behalf of or for the benefit of the members of an interest group, if a principal purpose of the activity is to enable such members to communicate orally with one or more legislators or administrative officials for the purpose of influencing legislative or administrative action or to obtain their goodwill.

REGISTRATION

To Access the Lobbying Information System, follow this link: <https://lobbying.sec.state.vt.us/Home>

Lobbyist Employers: Any person, other than a lobbying firm, who engages the services of a lobbyist for compensation for the purposes of lobbying. A lobbyist who employs another lobbyist shall be required to register and report both as an employer and a lobbyist.

Lobbyists: A person who receives or is entitled to receive, either by employment or contract, $500 or more in monetary or in-kind compensation in any calendar year for engaging in lobbying, either personally or through his or her agents, or a person who expends more than $500 on lobbying in any calendar year.

Lobbying firms: A sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation, limited liability corporation, or an unincorporated association which receives or is entitled to receive $500 or more in monetary or in-kind compensation for engaging in lobbying, either personally or through its agents, in any calendar year and employs more than one individual lobbyist or contracts with at least one other lobbyist, or is affiliated with at least one other lobbyist.

Registration period: When a lobbyist or lobbyist employer registers, the registration stays active until either the end of the legislative biennium or until such time as the lobbyist or lobbyist employer terminates the registration. If the lobbyist or lobbyist employer terminates a registration before the end of the registration period, a final disclosure report is due (see section on Disclosure for more details). Often times, lobbyists “assume” that during the biennium their lobbyist status will automatically terminate because the issue in which they had been lobbying for has been resolved. This is NOT the case. A formal termination form MUST be filed with the Secretary of State’s office for both the lobbyist and lobbyist employer. Failure to do so will subject lobbyists and/or lobbyist employers to the possibility of late disclosure fees, should they not realize disclosures need to be filed.

REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS AND FEES

LOBBYISTS

Every lobbyist is required to register online with the Office of the Secretary of State, using the Vermont Lobbying Information System, before or within 48 hours of commencing lobbying activities. A lobbyist must file a separate registration statement for each of the lobbyist's employers that he or she represents. This can all be done online, by following the prompts in the Lobbying Information System. The initial filing fee of $60 is paid by the lobbyist at the time of registration. An additional registration fee of $15 is charged to list each lobbyist employer. Electronic payment must be rendered at the time of registration. Credit Cards or E-Checks are acceptable. We do not accept cash as a method of payment.

*Please note that the online system will calculate all the fees for you.

Fees: Each lobbyist must pay an initial registration fee of $60 plus an additional $15 for each lobbyist employer listed. If a lobbyist has paid the initial $60 registration fee for the registration period, and adds additional lobbyist employers, the lobbyist needs to file a supplemental registration form and pay a fee of $15 per lobbyist employer listed. (Every lobbyist employer listed by a lobbyist must also file their own lobbyist employer registration.)

LOBBYIST EMPLOYERS

Every lobbyist employer is required to register online with the Office of the Secretary of State, using the Lobbying Information System, before or within 48 hours of engaging a lobbyist. If an employer engages an additional lobbyist, the lobbyist employer shall file a supplemental registration statement by following the prompts on the online Lobbyist Information System at the same time as the additional lobbyist files.

Fees: Each lobbyist employer must pay an initial registration fee of $60, plus an additional $15 for each lobbyist added. If a lobbyist employer has paid the initial $60 registration fee for the registration period, and adds additional lobbyist(s), the employer needs to file a supplemental registration form and pay a fee of $15 per lobbyist listed. (Every lobbyist listed by a lobbyist employer must also file their own lobbyist registration.) Payment must be rendered at the time of registration. This can all be done online, by following the prompts in the Lobbying Information System. Electronic payment must be rendered at the time of registration. Credit Cards or E-Checks are acceptable. We do not accept cash as a method of payment.

LOBBYING FIRMS

Every lobbying firm must file a Lobbying Firm Listing by filing online, using the Vermont Lobbying Information System. The form lists all lobbyists who are employed by, subcontracted by, members of, or affiliated with the lobbying firm. Each lobbying firm shall file a supplemental list within 48 hours of any changes that have occurred.

Fees: Every Lobbying Firm shall pay an initial Firm listing fee of $150. There are no subsequent fees when adding additional lobbyists to Firm listings.

DISCLOSURE

To Access the Lobbying Information System, follow this link: <https://lobbying.sec.state.vt.us/Home>

Lobbyists, lobbyist employers and lobbying firms must file disclosure reports online using the Vermont Lobbying Information System, which is available on the Secretary of State's website. Following is a list of disclosure dates as required by statute.

The seven disclosure reports due from lobbyists, lobbyist employers and lobbying firms are:

- (1) on or before January 15, for the preceding period beginning on September 1 and ending with December 31;
- (2) on or before February 15, for the preceding period beginning on January 1 and ending with January 31;
- (3) on or before March 15, for the preceding period beginning on February 1 and ending with the last day of February;
- (4) on or before April 15, for the preceding period beginning on March 1 and ending with March 31;
- (5) on or before May 15, for the preceding period beginning on April 1 and ending with April 30;
- (6) on or before June 15, for the preceding period beginning on May 1 and ending with May 31; and
- (7) on or before September 15, for the preceding period beginning on June 1 and ending August 31;

All registered entities (lobbyists/employers/firms) must file a disclosure report, using the online Vermont Lobbying Information System, even if there is a $0.00 reporting figure. The “No Activity to Report” option can be used.

EXPENDITURES

Lobbyists, Lobbying Firms & Lobbyist Employers

For lobbyists, lobbying firms and lobbyist employers, lobbying expenditures must be broken down into four subcategories:

- Advertising: includes TV, radio, print and electronic media.
Advertising expenditures are only reported if they are intended to communicate with legislators or administrative officials or if they are intended to solicit others to communicate with legislators or administrative officials.
- Telemarketing: includes polling or similar activities (if intended to directly or indirectly influence legislative or administrative action). Telemarketing expenditures will specify the amount, to whom the expenditure was made and a brief description of the activity.
- Contracts (Over $100): Contractual agreements or direct business relationships in excess of $100 per year (including any that were entered into within the previous 12 months between a legislator or administrator, a legislator’s or administrator’s spouse or civil union partner, or a legislator’s or administrator’s dependent household member).
- Other expenditures: Any other lobbying expenditures (for example, travel expenses, etc.).

GIFTS – Lobbyists, Lobbying Firms & Lobbyist Employers

All lobbyists, lobbying firms and lobbyist employers must report gifts over $15 given to or at the request of a legislator or administrative official or a member of a legislator’s or administrative official’s immediate family.

A gift, under the lobbying law, is:
a political contribution;

Anything of value, tangible or intangible, that is bestowed for less than adequate consideration, including travel expenses such as travel fare, room and board and other expenses associated with travel a meal or alcoholic beverage; a ticket, fee, or honorarium, except actual and reasonable travel expenses a loan made on terms more favorable than those made generally to the public in the normal course of business

A gift is NOT “anything given between immediate family members; printed educational material such as books, reports, pamphlets or periodicals; a gift which is not used and which, within 30 days after receipt, is returned to the donor or for which the donor is reimbursed for its fair market value; or a devise or inheritance.”

LOBBYISTS

All registered lobbyists must file a disclosure report, using the online Vermont Lobbying Information System, even if there is a $0.00 reporting figure. The “No Activity to Report” option can be used.

Lobbyists affiliated with a lobbying firm: A lobbyist who is employed by, subcontracted by, or affiliated with a lobbying firm as defined by 2 V.S.A. §261(12) shall report compensation paid to the lobbyist by the employer on his or her disclosure form by checking the box marked: “My compensation is being reported by the lobbying firm that employs me,” and sign the form. This compensation is reported by the lobbying firm that employs, subcontracts with or is affiliated with the lobbyist.

Any unreimbursed expenditures or gifts made by a lobbyist will be reported by that lobbyist. For example, if a lobbyist buys dinner for a legislator in connection with lobbying activities, that portion of the legislator’s dinner which exceeds $15 must be reported by the lobbyist if the lobbyist is not reimbursed by his lobbying firm or lobbyist employer. If the lobbyist was reimbursed by the lobbying firm or lobbyist employer, the firm or employer reports this expense.

Lobbyists NOT affiliated with a lobbying firm: Any lobbyist who is NOT employed by, subcontracted by, or affiliated with a lobbying firm reports the total compensation paid to the lobbyist for lobbying activities. The lobbyist also includes the name and address of each employer that paid compensation to the lobbyist.

Lobbyists not affiliated with lobbying firms must also report any unreimbursed expenditures that are not reimbursed by an employer. If the employer reimburses the lobbyist, then the employer reports the expense.

LOBBYING FIRMS

All registered entities (lobbyists/employers/firms) must file a disclosure report, using the online Vermont Lobbying Information System, even if there is a $0.00 reporting figure. The “No Activity to Report” option can be used.

A lobbying firm is any “sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation, limited liability corporation, or unincorporated association which receives or is entitled to receive $500.00 or more in monetary or in-kind compensation for engaging in lobbying, either personally or through its agents, in any calendar year AND employs more than one individual lobbyist, contracts with at least one other lobbyist, or is affiliated with at least one other lobbyist.”

Please note there is a difference between lobbying firms and lobbyist employers. A lobbyist employer is essentially a “client” of a lobbying firm and/or lobbyist. See section on Lobbyist Employers for further clarification.

Lobbying firms are required to disclose the total compensation paid to the firm by all lobbyist employers for the reporting period, and to list the name(s) and address(es) of each employer who compensated the lobbying firm.

Lobbying firms must also report any unreimbursed expenditures paid by the lobbying firm for lobbying activities. If the firm is reimbursed for the expenditure(s) by the lobbyist employer, the employer reports the expenditures.

LOBBYIST EMPLOYERS

All registered entities (lobbyists/employers/firms) must file a disclosure report, using the online Vermont Lobbying Information System, even if there is a $0.00 reporting figure. The “No Activity to Report” option can be used.

A lobbyist employer is any person, other than a lobbying firm, who engages the services of a lobbyist for compensation for the purpose of lobbying. Please note the distinction between lobbyist employers and lobbying firms; lobbying firms receive compensation for lobbying activities, while lobbyist employers pay compensation to lobbying firm(s) or individual lobbyist(s) to lobby on behalf of the employer.

Lobbyist employers must report compensation paid to individual lobbyists who are not affiliated with a lobbying firm, or to lobbying firms for any lobbyist(s) affiliated with a lobbying firm. Employers must also list the name(s) and address(es) of any lobbying firm(s) or lobbyist(s) that the employer compensated.

Pro-rating compensation: Some lobbyist employers employ only “in house” lobbyists, or staff members whose lobbying activities are incidental to the person’s regular employment or other responsibilities to the employer. The law provides that the compensation to lobbyists or lobbying firms may be pro-rated based on the value of the time devoted to lobbying activities on behalf of the employer.

Please keep in mind that the total compensation should also be pro-rated for the disclosure period; for example, if there is a contract between the employer and the lobbyist or lobbying firm that covers the legislative session, the amount of compensation reported for January 1- January 31 should cover only that one-month period.

Lobbyist employers must also report expenditures made in connection with lobbying activities. In most instances, the employer will be reporting expenditures since most employers will be either paying for expenditures (such as advertising or telemarketing) or reimbursing lobbyists and/or lobbying firms for other expenditures (such as travel expenses).

FILING DEADLINES AND LATE PENALTIES

Any required registration and supplemental registration forms not received before or within 48 hours of commencing lobbying activities (for lobbyists) or engaging the services of a lobbyist (for employers) are subject to a late penalty of $25 for each day the registration is late, not to exceed $350.

A lobbyist employer, lobbyist or lobbying firm who fails to file a disclosure report through the online Vermont Lobbying Information System on time will be assessed a late penalty of $25 for each day the report is late. The maximum penalty is $350. The online system automatically calculates all late fees. Fees will not be waived.

LIMITED EXEMPTIONS

While municipalities, elected or appointed officials and their direct employees continue to be exempt from registration, if an exempt entity or exempt individual contracts with a lobbyist firm, or independent contractor lobbyist, then that entity and the lobbyist contracted, must both comply with the lobbyist registration and disclosure law.

PROHIBITED CONDUCT

A legislator or an Executive officer, for one year after leaving office, shall not be a lobbyist in this State.

A lobbyist may not work on a contingency fee basis.

A legislator or administrative official cannot solicit any gift other than charitable contributions for non-profit organizations qualified under section 501(c)(3) of the federal Internal Revenue Code from a register lobbyist employer, registered lobbyist or a lobbying firm at any time, except campaign contributions as defined in 17 V.S.A. §2901, which can be solicited by a legislator or administrative official after adjournment sine die.

A legislator or an administrative official can accept an unsolicited gift from a lobbyist, lobbyist employer or lobbyist firm. The lobbyist, lobbyist employer or lobbying firm must disclose each gift valued at $15 or more in the next disclosure report.

When the general assembly is in session (from the beginning of the biennial session in an odd-numbered year until adjournment sine die the following even-numbered year), a legislator, a legislator's candidate committee, a legislative leadership PAC (as defined in 17 V.S.A. §2901) or an administrative official cannot solicit a campaign contribution as defined by 17 V.S.A. §2901 from a lobbyist, lobbyist employer or a lobbying firm.

While the general assembly is in session, a lobbyist, lobbyist employer or a lobbying firm cannot make or promise to make a campaign contribution as defined in 17 V.S.A. §2901 to a legislator, a legislator's candidate committee, a legislative leadership PAC (as defined in 17 V.S.A. §2901).

While the law does not mention administrative officials in its prohibition of making or promising to make a political contribution to a legislator, a legislator's candidate committee, a legislative leadership PAC (as defined in 17 V.S.A. §2901) in section 266(3), the law does prohibit solicitation of campaign contributions from lobbyists, lobbyist employers and lobbying firms by administrative officials until adjournment sine die. We suggest an administrative official consult with his or her attorney on what constitutes solicitation of a campaign contribution before deciding to accept political campaign contributions while the general assembly is in session. In campaign finance terms, a contribution is not accepted until it has been deposited in the candidate's designated campaign checking account.

INVESTIGATIONS AND PENALTIES

The attorney general's office must now investigate complaints alleging violations of Vermont's lobbyist registration and disclosure law, either on his own initiative or in response to written complaints. The resolution of any complaint(s) found to have merit will be posted on the attorney general's website.

The attorney general may bring an action in superior court to enforce provisions of the lobbyist disclosure law, to ensure compliance or to obtain civil penalties described below.

A court may grant temporary or permanent injunctive relief and may enjoin future activities, order remedial actions to effect all registration and disclosure required, order reimbursement from any lobbyist or employer found to be in violation of the lobbyist law, or levy a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for each violation. An additional penalty of not more than $1,000 may be imposed for each day the violation continues.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

We include our responses to some frequently asked questions below. These issues have not been tested in court but reflect our best estimate of how a court might rule. Our conservative advice to all is to err on the side of caution, by reporting or registering in any situations where you have any question as to whether your activities would trigger registration and disclosure.

GENERAL LOBBYING QUESTIONS

How do I access the Lobbying Information System?

To Access the Lobbying Information System, follow this link: <https://lobbying.sec.state.vt.us/Home>

What is the difference between a lobbyist employer and a lobbying firm?

A lobbying firm is an entity that generally includes more than one lobbyist who receives or is entitled to receive $500 or more in either monetary or in-kind compensation for lobbying in a calendar year. All lobbyists affiliated with a firm will report their compensation through the firm. The lobbying firm may have many clients (lobbyist employer clients") that are represented by all of the firms' lobbyists. Occasionally, the firm will not assign all of their lobbyists to represent a lobbyist employer (client). A lobbyist employer is an entity, or client, that engages the services of a lobbyist or lobbyist firm and compensates the lobbyist or lobbyist firm for conducting lobbying activities on its behalf. Lobbyist employers are generally either clients of a lobbyist or lobbying firm, or have "in house" staff members who lobby on their behalf.

Is it lobbying when a lawyer contacts state agency attorneys or officials for a client?

If the purpose of the communication is confined to representing a client in a contested case, it is not lobbying. If the communications with state agency staff are intended to influence the substance of law(s) that may be passed, or the content of administrative rules or policies that may be adopted, or the manner in which policy may be carried out, then those efforts qualify as lobbying and expenditures must be reported.

Is it lobbying when a lawyer gives legal advice to a client about dealing with state agencies?

If the purpose of the consultation or research is in preparation for a lobbying effort as described above, then it would be considered a lobbying expenditure. However, if the client, after your advice is given, decides based upon the attorney's analysis not to follow through with lobbying efforts either directly or by urging others to do so, then the expenses would not be construed as lobbying and therefore there would be no reporting.

Is a member of an association that is registered as a lobbyist employer required to register as a lobbyist when the member lobbies on behalf of the association?

The answer depends on whether the member is paid by his professional employer or the lobbyist employer (association) to lobby, the amount of out-of-pocket expenditures that are incurred by the member, whether the member is reimbursed for these expenses, and if so, who provides the reimbursement. If a member of an association engages without pay in lobbying activities to advance the goals of the association, the member's activities will not be attributed to his or her professional employer. In this case, the member will not be required to register as a lobbyist unless his or her out-of-pocket expenses exceed $500 annually. However, if the member is reimbursed more than $500 annually for expenses incurred for lobbying on behalf of the association, then the member must register as a lobbyist and the entity that reimbursed the member must register as a lobbyist employer. If the member's employer allows the member to lobby during hours for which the employer is paying the member wages or salary (i.e., if the lobbying is done on company time), both the member and the professional employer must register as soon as the $500 threshold is met.

Are lobbying activities by state or local officials automatically exempt?

The statute provides a limited exemption if the state or local official's activities are solely related to his or her official duties as a public official. However, if the lobbying activities go beyond matters relating to the state or local official's duties, the person must register and report if the $500 threshold is reached. For example, an official who testifies on behalf of a private group to argue in favor of a bill would be required to register and report once the official reaches the $500 expenditures threshold. This includes lobbying on behalf of an association of local officials, for example, the VT League of Cities and Towns or the VT School Boards Association.

What if state or local government contracts with a lobbyist to lobby on its behalf?

The law was recently changed so that if any instrumentality, agency or governmental subdivision of the United States or State of Vermont (including municipalities) contracts with a lobbyist to conduct lobbying activities on its behalf, then both the entity and the lobbyist must register and report. For example, a town manager may testify on issues that may affect the municipality without triggering registration or reporting requirements. However, if a town contracts with a lobbying firm or a lobbyist to conduct lobbying activities on behalf of the town, then the town and the lobbyist(s) must both register and report.

If a lobbyist is appointed to serve on a commission or council that includes one or more administrative officials or legislators, is that lobbyist engaged in lobbying when, as a member of that commission, he or she engages in discussions concerning policies or proposed legislation?

No. In such a situation the lobbyist is participating as an appointed state official. The communications and activities conducted in connection with duties under such an appointment are exempt from the reporting requirements as long as the activities are confined to the business of the commission or council. If a lobbyist uses the opportunity of being with other commissioners or council members to attempt to lobby on behalf of his or her clients, then that portion of time must be reported.

Is an editor or publisher of a newspaper ever required to register and report?

The news media is exempt when engaged solely in the acquisition or dissemination of news on behalf of the news medium. This exemption does not apply to an editor or publisher who participates in lobbying activities, such as testifying on behalf of a bill or rule or on behalf of an association of news media; once the $500 threshold is reached in this situation, registration and reporting are required.

Is it lobbying when a lobbyist employer sponsors a concert for the general public with a ticket price of $15 and provides invitations and free tickets to legislators?

The concert itself is not a lobbying event, but the employer must separately report as a gift the cost of each ticket (of $15 or more) that is provided to a legislator or administrative official. The law was recently amended to explicitly include payment of expenses to or for any sporting, recreational or entertainment events by a lobbyist or lobbyist employer.

DISCLOSURE

Does a lobbyist employer or lobbying firm need to report advertising that is not connected with lobbying activities?

No. Only lobbying expenditures are required to be reported by lobbyist employers or lobbying firms. For example, if a hospital that is registered as a lobbyist employer runs a series of ads promoting a new brain trauma center, the hospital does not report these advertising expenses. However, if the hospital ran a series of ads urging the legislature to provide funding for a new facility, or urging citizens to contact legislators or administrative officials to change law or policy regarding the handling of certain health facility expenses, this would be a reportable lobbying expenditure. Similarly, a lobbying firm that simply advertises its services does not have to report these ads as a lobbying expenditure.

Who reports expenses that are reimbursed?

Expenses are reported by whoever actually pays. For example, if a lobbying firm pays for its lobbyists' travel expenses but is reimbursed for these expenses by the lobbyist employer, the employer is responsible for reporting the travel expenses as "other" lobbying expenditures. Similarly, if a lobbyist pays for a meal, but is reimbursed by the lobbyist employer, the lobbyist employer reports the expenditure. Lobbyists frequently report "0" expenditures, because all of the expenditures are reimbursed by a client or lobbyist employer who is the reporter.

Do contributions by lobbyists and employers for the purpose of defraying conference expenses for legislators or administrative officials constitute “goodwill” lobbying, even when the conference is sponsored by a third party, such as the National Governor’s Conference?

Yes, if the value is greater than $15. The definition of “gift” was changed in 2006 to include “anything of value, tangible or intangible, that is bestowed for less than adequate consideration, including travel expenses such as travel fare, room and board, and other expenses associated with travel.” (Emphasis added)

Is it a lobbying expenditure for a lobbyist, lobbying firm or employer to buy a ticket to attend a political fundraising event sponsored by a political party?

Lobbyists are entitled to their personal political associations and the purchase of a ticket to a fundraiser would not automatically be considered an attempt to obtain goodwill. Whether or not the expenditure needs to be reported depends on whether the lobbyist uses the event as an opportunity to lobby, and on the reason for purchasing the ticket. However, if you determine that your purchase of the ticket is a lobbying expenditure, it would be report under “Other Lobbying Expenditures.”

Are research expenditures made in connection with lobbying reportable?

Yes, except that research conducted to decide whether or not to lobby is not an expenditure. For example, if the object of the research is to provide your client an analysis of the judicial, administrative and legislative options for resolving a legal problem, the research costs would not be a reportable expense if the client or lobbyist employer decided after reviewing your advice that it would pursue a resolution in the courts rather than attempt to influence legislation or policy. However, if the client or lobbyist employer decides to ask you to go forward to influence legislation or administrative policy, then the sums expended on research after the client’s decision would be reportable. See FAQ re legal research on page 7.

If a lobbyist employer hires an economist to prepare a document that provides up-to-date information on the manufacturing sector, is the cost reportable?

If the document is prepared to be used by lobbyists for the purposes of obtaining legislative or administrative action, then the expense of the research, printing and publication of the document is considered a lobbying expense.

What if a lobbyist employer distributes a more general publication designed to educate the public about the mission and activities of an employer or an industry to legislators or administrative officials?

If the document that is distributed to legislators or administrative officials falls under the statutory exception for “printed education materials such as books, reports, pamphlets, or periodicals...” then the cost of the document is not required to be reported as a gift. 2 V.S.A. §261(6)(B)(ii)

If a lobbyist employer wants to invite a legislator or administrative official to an awards ceremony, do the travel costs get reported? What if the organization is honoring the legislator or administrative official?

Any speaking fee or honorarium that is valued at greater than $15 bestowed on a legislator or administrative official is reported as a gift.

Must gifts be connected to lobbying activities in order to be reportable?

No. If a gift, as defined in 2 V.S.A. §261(6), worth more than $15 is given by or on behalf of a lobbyist, lobbying firm, or employer to a legislator or administrative official, it must be separately reported. The exceptions in the definition of a “gift” are: anything given between family members; printed educational materials such as books, reports, pamphlets, or periodicals; a gift which is not used and which, within 30 days after receipt, is returned to the donor, or for which the donor is reimbursed for its fair market value; and a devise or inheritance. 2 V.S.A. §261(6)(B)

Do gifts need to be reported in the total of lobbying expenditures?

No. Gifts must be listed and reported separately including contributions to political campaigns. Please read our Guide to Vermont’s Campaign Finance Law for more detailed information on contribution limits, etc.

Is a lobbyist or lobbyist employer prohibited from contributing to a political party or PAC during the legislative session?

Contributions to political committees (PACs) that are not candidate committees or legislative leadership PACs as defined in 17 V.S.A. §2901 are not regulated by the Lobbyist Disclosure Law; however, lobbyists are prohibited from making any contributions to a candidate’s political committee or a legislative leadership PAC until after the adjournment sine die of the complete legislative biennial session ending in even numbered years. For example, Friends of Joe Smith for Representative would be considered a candidate’s political committee and donations from a lobbyist, lobbyist employer or lobbying firm to this group would be prohibited. Legislative leadership PACs are required to self-identify as such at the time they register with the Office of the Secretary of State. Contributions to legislative leadership PACs are prohibited prior to adjournment sine die.

Does the law prohibit or regulate solicitations by political parties?

No, political parties are not covered by the lobbyist disclosure law.

Are political contributions to candidates for federal office required to be reported?

No. The lobbying law only covers state administrative officials (i.e., governor, lieutenant governor, etc.). Even if a current legislator is running for federal office, if the contribution is made to the legislator’s federal election campaign, it is not reportable under Vermont’s lobbying law. (For further information on contributions to federal candidates, check with the Federal Election Commission at <http://www.fec.gov>.)
